Dear Art:

Just to bring you up to date on Herzenberg: I was glad to find that he is very much interested in the possibility of coming into the Genetics Department as an instructor. However, I have urged him not to cut himself off from the possibility of another excellent position in the National Institute of Health until he has had a chance to discuss first hand the details of the appointment and especially the facilities that would be available to him. He is planning to come out to Stanford on February 9 to discuss these details.

Yours, as ever,
